Artist Statement

People are so dissimilar, yet we all share a universal need for connection and a capacity for emotion, memory, change, vision and discovery. My work explores this dichotomy, investigating these common human traits through my own individual experiences and ever-changing personal perspectives. I am strongly drawn to themes of domesticity, home and family.

Formally, I often use my own image, geometric shapes, color, and texture as metaphor. I celebrate the uniqueness of each individual, while attempting to express that which is at the core of us all.
